44th Annual Labor Day Festival

by Sandy Smith

The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival is the city's biggest party-in every sense. It attracts more residents and visitors than any other city event, takes more people to plan and organize than virtually any other activity, and involves—before its last act on Monday—more individuals, businesses, associations, organizations and groups than any other single Greenbelt venture. That has always been the story and continues to be the Labor Day tradition.

So what will Greenbelters and visitors enjoy? The carnival midway with rides operated by Rosedale Amusements and games, food and information booths operated by Greenbelt organizations is always the centerpiece of the Festival. Other activities fan out from the municipal parking lot, where the carnival is located. Bingo is on the hill near the Community Center, the craft show on Saturday is on the Community Center lawn, as are the Children's Pet Show and the Kids' Games. The Art and Photo Shows are in the Community Center.

Sports activities take place on Braden Field, at the Aquatic Center, the tennis courts, and the Youth Center. The parade on Monday marches down Crescent from the Lake Park to the viewing stand at Southway. The Festival stage is the viewing spot for the non-stop entertainment—top bands, singers, cloggers, clowns, puppets and more. And the action begins in Roosevelt Center, where the Greenbelt Concert Band of Prince Georges County provides the traditional musical start of the Festival. Shuttle buses bring Festival guests from throughout Greenbelt and the

Opening Ceremonies

The Opening Ceremonies which take place on Friday evening, feature local dignitaries who are present to recognize and honor the city's 1998 Outstanding Citizen. For the first time, Maryland's Governor Parris Glendening will attend the opening ceremonies. A reception follows at city hall and everyone is invited to congratulate this year's winner. Meanwhile on the stage, the Miss Greenbelt Pageant participants are being introduced with a dance presentation and modeling event. A sign language interpreter will help communicate the information.

Rich Lee, popular deejay at WAVA radio station, returns as the MC of the Pageant. Then Finale, making a second appearance at the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival takes the stage as the Festival's opening band. This popular group, sponsored by Greenbelt Empress Travel, plays high energy dance music which spans the decades.

Kids' Day

The Children's Pet Show has a long tradition. While not a part of the very first Labor Day Festivals, the Pet Show is now in its 28th year. Dogs, cats, gerbils, rabbits, mice, lizards, hamsters and other popular pets will be brought—in cages, on leashes, or under duress—by their young owners to win a ribbon based on their personality or physical attributes. Members of Girls Scout Troop 3030 will be in charge and are ready for the many pets which appear each year.

The children themselves get a chance to perform in the kids' games. There are games for crawlers, such as the diaper derby, and other games of skill and agility for those up to 10 years of age. Later in the afternoon, the Talent Show on the Festival stage features many young performers as well as

To Annex or Not? Parkside Hearing to Be on Sept. 10

by James Giese

To annex Parkside or not annex Parkside? That is the question to be debated by citizens of Greenbelt and Parkside at the public hearing scheduled for Thursday, September 10 at the Municipal Building. Parkside is a small enclave of 31 homes on Good Luck Road jutting into Greenbelt Park, an area once targeted to be purchased by the Federal Government (in the 1930's) for the Greenbelt model planned community, but never acquired and never made a part of the city. The area was petitioned to annexation to the city by 64 percent of the property owners and 78 percent of the registered voters, well above the 25 percent required by law to initiate such a procedure. The petition compelled the city council to consider an annexation resolution in accordance with procedures prescribed by state law.

In seeking annexation, the residents claim that they had thought that they would be a part of the city when they purchased their new homes there. They feel that there is benefit to them as property owners to have a Greenbelt address and to receive city services and programs.

Greenbelt City Manager Michael McLaughlin says he is flattered by the good comments received by residents of Parkside and regrets that they apparently were misinformed when they purchased their homes. However, he said, "from a service provision point of view it does not make sense to annex this property because of its distance from the remainder of the city's service areas." Parkside is more than 3.4 miles from the city's Public Works Building and Police Station. It is 2 miles distant from the nearest city street that is plowed during snow removal.

Not a Problem?

McLaughlin notes that a statement prepared by the city on the extension of services to the area indicates that the annexation on the surface, would not be a burden to the city. The property would generate an additional $39,000 in revenues for the city and would not require the employment of any additional help.

Existing city forces would be able to provide the same services to the area as are provided to other parts of the city. However, in a May 21 memo, Planning and Community Development Director Celia Wilson estimates that expenditures to service the area would be some $15,000 more than the revenues generated. While that is a very small amount to a city whose annual budget exceeds $14 million dollars, McLaughlin is concerned with the problems of the extra 10 to 20 minutes in travel time it would take city forces to reach Parkside. This could become critical during a time of emergency, he noted, such as a re-

Eight State Delegate Hopefuls Explore Issues at Public Forum

by James Giese

The lone Republican joined all seven Democratic 23rd District House of Delegates candidates in a polite debate at a candidates night forum sponsored by Citizens for Greenbelt. The forum, on August 25, drew only about 30 citizens, many of whom were supporters of individual candidates. The forum was also broadcast live on the Greenbelt cable channel, B-10.

While there was disagreement (as well as considerable agreement), none of the issues generated any heat or passion among the candidates. The issue most strongly contested was providing a free needle exchange program to drug addicts.

Needle Exchange

The question was raised by Chuck Brooks of Lanham, who expressed concern that all three of the incumbents standing for reelection — Mary Conroy, Joan Pitkin and James Hubbard — had supported legislation enacted in the last legislative session to establish a needle exchange program in Maryland. Brooks felt that the program would perpetuate drug use.

The incumbents pointed out that programs implemented in other jurisdictions have shown reductions in drug use and have curtailed the spread of AIDS and other viruses. Pitkin noted that the addicts who use the program do not have health insurance; therefore, the burden of their treatment for disease falls upon the taxpayers of the state, as well as that of innocent victims, such as children. She further noted that it was a powerful means to get addicts into counseling. They have to turn in a needle in order to get another one.

But other candidates disagreed. Joseph Braswell, the lone Republican and a minister, said that if elected, he would take that bill and turn it around. Addicts should be taught hope, not dope. Shukoor Ahmed also advocated killing the needle exchange program and spending the money on treatment instead. Bernard Nolan, III, also supported more being done for drug rehabilitation programs. He was concerned that the exchange program would promote use. However, he admitted that there were good arguments on both sides. Marvin Holmes, Jr., said that vocational training programs should be coupled with rehabilitation programs to show people that there is another way.

Pitkin cited a talk given by former defense secretary George Schultz at the Hoover Institute, who called the anti-drug program a failure, with one of the few successes being the needle exchange programs. He considers drug use a medical problem. But Braswell disagreed, calling drug use a moral problem, and that the constituencies in Bowie he had talked to were totally against the needle exchange program.

Hubbard, however, contended that needle exchange programs in other jurisdictions have been successful in getting 30% of those who have come in for exchange into counseling programs. Conroy said that the program will save money that can be used to better treat AIDS victims. Nolan then said he would be in favor of the program if charities came up with half the funds, which could then be matched with state or county funds.

Hans Hopp, a Lyndon LaRouche Democrat, advocated

Roosevelt Center Owner Meets with City Council

by Altoria Bell Ross

The Greenbelt City Council met with one of the owners of buildings at Roosevelt Center, George Christacos, during an August 24 worksession to update him on the renovations of the center mall that will begin in October.

City Manager Michael McLaughlin told George Christacos, owner of the two buildings that front on both Centerway and the mall, that the project will take four to six weeks to complete and will include removing the red brick-like stones in the center and replacing them with a mixture of concrete. Tables and chairs also will be installed, and flowers will be planted. The pear trees will come out, and 20 foot haka zelvova trees will be planted in the middle. These trees are less dense and will allow people to see the store signs, said Mayor Judith Davis. The existing benches will be removed and in their place eight new benches will be installed, four on each side of the mall.

The flagpole in front of the Greenbelt Credit Union and the chess table near the Mother and Child statue will come down. The statue's base may be changed for preservation, said Davis. The Greenbelt sign above the marquee in front of the theater also will be renovated, and a surveillance camera will be hooked up by cable to the Greenbelt Police Department, most likely, on the Beijing restaurant for a wide view of the center. During construction, the city council has asked the Beijing and the Centerway Mini-Mart to open their side doors for business, rather than admitting customers through the main doors facing the mall, McLaughlin said.

Vandalism

Christacos, who was born the year the center opened in 1937, did not have any comments about the renovations, but he did talk about damage done to a vacant suite of offices above Beijing on August 10. Vandals sprayed the freshly painted walls with oil. He also complained that it took the Greenbelt Police 40 minutes to respond to his call about the incident. Davis said the response time was unacceptable while other members of the

Letters to the Editor

In Support

We support the annexation of the Parkside Homes. Our daughter and son-in-law grew up in Greenbelt and bought a Parkside home. The owners initially entered into their contracts believing that their homes were a part of Greenbelt. Most of the 31 Parkside residents are adjacent to the Greenbelt Park, which is within our city boundary. Bill and Eileen and their neighbors have had an ongoing dialogue with Greenbelt Park in which they support and cooperate in an effort to protect this valued parkland.

We've reviewed the draft Charter Amendment Resolution No. 1998-1 and find many good reasons to support the annexation. We hope that our city council will proceed with plans to include these neighbors within our boundaries.

Jack and Dee Downs

Don't Lose Chance

We are residents of Parkside at Greenbelt who chose to live in this neighborhood in part due to its proximity to Greenbelt Park. We are volunteers at the Park and spend hours each month walking there, picking up litter, and clearing and maintaining trails. Greenbelt Park is a treasure and an oasis within the Beltway.

All those on the City Council who value Greenbelt Park should vote yes for incorporation of Parkside at Greenbelt into the city of Greenbelt. Our homes are nestled entirely within the park so we are a geographic part of the park, whatever our legal classification. You, as residents of Greenbelt, would have far more influence working through the city government in preserving and protecting the park than if Parkside at Greenbelt remains part of unincorporated Prince George's County. We would like to work with you to further our mutual goal of preserving and protecting the park.

Voting yes for the incorporation of Parkside at Greenbelt into the city of Greenbelt will give each of you and all the residents of Greenbelt more control over what happens to our community and to the park in the future. Don't lose your chance to take advantage of this unique opportunity. We would welcome you as neighbors and colleagues — please do the same for us. Thank you for your consideration.

Benefits Clear

Residents of Parkside at Greenbelt have requested annexation by the adjacent city of Greenbelt. I encourage council members and residents of Greenbelt to consider this request with open minds, as this small, cohesive, and diverse neighborhood is an obvious asset to the city's human and financial resources and will have no negative effects on its service provision or reputation.

The 31 houses in this subdivision are owned by a diverse group of professionals and retirees with much to offer the city. Among the many contributions they currently make to community life, Parkside residents patrol and maintain trails in Greenbelt Park, work as foster parents, march for and against abortion rights, and loyally support the Redskins and the local Girl Scouts. Incomes and property values in Parkside are much higher than average for the area. The approximately six million dollar total assessment of houses in Parkside translates into a significant new revenue source for Greenbelt. Fortunately, these houses are all new; all are equipped with sprinkler systems and smoke detectors; fewer than half the families are raising children; and the neighborhood is crime free. In short, the subdivision will make negligible demands on city services. According to Greenbelt's city manager, the occasional need for police services can easily be met by the city's current force (indeed, Greenbelt police are a familiar sight in the development).

Now that Greenbelt knows why it wants to annex Parkside, the proper question is, "Why do Parkside residents wish to join Greenbelt?" The reasons are as diverse as the neighborhood: some want to continue as members of the community where they have lived or grown up; others to reduce the time their children spend commuting to and from school or to take advantage of Greenbelt's schools; others to reduce insurance rates; still others to participate in the vibrant civic life that characterizes Greenbelt. Above all, Parkside residents are looking for a way out of the limbo they find themselves in as part of unincorporated (and politically unrepresented) Prince George's county.

Both Greenbelt and Parkside will benefit from this annexation. I am confident that these benefits will become as clear to a majority of council members as they are to so many residents of both communities.

Disaster Averted

This week I came upon four boys in the woods adjoining my property on Ridge Road. I heard them before I saw them and there was much talk and disagreement among them. As I approached there was a strong smell of burning leaves and I shouted that fire in the woods was illegal. When I came up to them they said there was no fire and that I could come and look. I had heard them hurriedly stamping it out so I said that I did not need to see that I had smelled the smoke and that I would report the incident.

At this they panicked and took off. I guess their ages to be from 12 to 15. In their hasty retreat they had left a can of WD-40 which I assume they wanted to use as lighter fluid. Fortunately it is not very good for that. Personally I am appalled; certainly the two older boys should know better. The woods are dry with dangerous tinder and the opportunity for a disaster very real. I feel that the community should be made aware that this might be a trend that must be stopped.

Word of Caution

Four weeks ago one of my neighbors and yours was molested in her home. That was really a very unfortunate incident.

Everyone should keep their doors and their windows on the first floor locked especially during the night hours. During those hours, do keep the front and back porch lights on.

The incident that happened could have happened to anyone. Please, everyone, take every precaution to see that your home is secure.

District School Board Candidates Night Set

An important decision is on the horizon for Greenbelt and Prince George's County. Soon we must choose the next representative to the Prince George's County School Board—someone to replace Suzanne Plogman, who has ably served Greenbelt and the county for many years.

In the coming weeks, we will have the opportunity to meet the three candidates for our district's seat. It is time for us to ask those questions about how these individuals propose to serve the community and enhance the educational system.

The Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Education urges all Greenbelters to consider what they feel are the needs of the school system and how to meet them. Then ask the candidates their views. One opportunity to ask them is at the upcoming Candidates Night at neighboring Berwyn Heights, sponsored by

by Elaine Skolnik

Eligible voters not registered with either the Republican or Democratic parties may still vote in the September 15 Primary Election for their preferred candidate in the non-partisan District 2 Board of Education contest. Three candidates are on the ballot — James Inzeo, Jim Henderson and Chye Calvo. The two top votegetters will participate in a face-off election on November 3 during the General Election.

Sample Ballots

In the meantime, the Board of Election Supervisors has been feeling the heat over their decision not to send County voters a sample (specimen) ballot for the primary election.

According to Prince George's County Councilwoman, Audrey Scott, who represents Greenbelt and Bowie, the council "allowed $60,000 in the budget for such a sample ballot, the figure given them by the Board of Elections." Scott said there was no indication from the Board's Election Administrators Robert J. Antonetti, Sr. that this amount was not acceptable.

In a July 14 press release, the Board of Elections referred to Maryland law, which requires the Board "to provide notice of a primary election by publication in newspapers in the County. The law also allows the Board to send a specimen ballot prior to the general election." However, the Board "is required to send (voters) a specimen ballot in the general election." The release pointed out that "no other County in the State of Maryland has a requirement to send out sample ballots in a primary election."

Scott stressed that the County Council felt strongly that sample ballots should be sent out, she said, because of voter apathy and the fact that participation was going down. "Ballots," she added "raise awareness, educate and inform... When these three points are addressed, participation increases."

Kenilworth Avenue Undergoes Widening

The State Highway Administration (SHA) is widening Kenilworth Avenue (MD 201) between I-95 and Cherrywood Lane from two lanes to three in both directions. The work is being done to accommodate increased traffic volumes. In addition to widening the roadway, approximately one-half mile along Kenilworth Avenue will be resurfaced and landscaped. Safety and drainage improvements will also be made.

Single lane closures may occur during off-peak hours Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m., and then again from 7 p.m. until 5 a.m. Arrow boards, concrete barriers, traffic cones and barrels alert and guide motorists through the area.

SHA awarded the $2 million contract to Concrete General, Inc. of Gaithersburg. The project will be completed by the summer of 1999, weather permitting. SHA reminds motorists to buckle up, reduce speeds, stay alert and use caution while driving through work zones.

Buy-A-Book Program Requests Donations

The Advisory Committee on Education (ACE) in cooperation with Crown Books and Bookland, continues to sponsor the Buy-A-Book program. Greenbelt schools need books. ACE encourages the public to help by buying the books at these bookstores. The process is simple.

The stores have the lists of books that are needed by each school. All that's necessary is to buy one or more of these books. The store will inscribe the book with the name of the donor. ACE will pick up the books and deliver them to the schools. All donations are appreciated. There is a Crown Books in Greenway Shopping Center, and a Bookland in Beltway Plaza. For information, call Bart Byers at 301-474-4891.

Members are urged to participate in the upcoming Greenbelt Labor Day Festival and Parade. Goldenagers will join the parade at the corner of Crescent and Hillside Rds. It's always nice to see so many current and former Greenbelters. Volunteers are always needed, and those who work so hard for this event year after year deserve a big thank you.

John Taylor announced the September Golden Age trip will be to New Market, VA, in the Shenandoah Valley, on Tuesday, Sept. 22. See the travel committee at meetings to sign up for trips. The heat and humidity pumped in by Hurricane Bonnie-didn't stop Goldenagers from enjoying the trip to St. Mary's City, and the surrounding area. The guide was very informative and the performers even fired a gun salute from the replica of the Dove. The Fall bulletin from the Recreation Dept. lists many classes, trips, and other activities for seniors. Most of them start in September. Look it over as there's something for everyone. "GIVES," which is still operating from an area in the Sr. Lounge, is for seniors who need help, and for those who can offer some occasional help to others. President Irene Hensel and John Taylor can probably answer questions relative to this program.

City Folk Dancers Host Free Evening

Everyone is invited to join the Greenbelt Folk Dancers for a free evening of folk dancing and refreshments on Friday, September 11, 7:30 p.m. at the Youth Center. The party will begin when the leader Roland Forbes asks the group to hold hands in a circle and begin a simple movement such as "walk to the right" or "step on your left foot and raise your right leg." Soon the music (audiotape) will start and the participants will begin dancing an authentic dance from Israel or Poland or perhaps Japan or Serbia. It's that easy to get started having fun with the dances and music from many countries all around the world.

Wear casual clothes and low heel shoes and come as a single or couple. Beginning and experienced dancers age 16 and older will be welcomed.

For those who enjoy the party and would like to join the Friday evening dance group, information will be available that evening or people may contact the Greenbelt Recreation Department, 301-397-2200. Come join the group - it's good exercise and lots of fun.

College Park Air Show Opens New Museum

Bring the whole family to an exciting weekend of aviation on Saturday and Sunday, September 12 and 13. Beginning with the grand opening of the new College Park Aviation Museum and continuing with the high-flying tradition of the College Park Air Fair, there's something for everyone to enjoy. Hours are from 11 to 6 both days.

During the grand opening, admission to the museum is free; special mementos will be presented to the first visitors.

Those who step outside the museum will be treated to a great air show from 2 to 4. Visitors may also see model rocket demonstrators, view a number of aircraft and exhibitor displays, or choose among vendors featuring aviation theme items. Highlights of the weekend AirFair will be the airplane and helicopters rides, and children's area with games and carnival rides. Food and beverages are available; no coolers are allowed.

Admission to the AirFair is $1 for adults; children are free. The gates open at 11 a.m. each day.

Directions

College Park Airport and College Park Aviation Museum are located on Cpl. Frank Scott Drive just off Paint Branch Parkway between Route 1 and Kenilworth Avenue in College Park, MD. Parking is free, or take the Metro Green Line to the College Park station and walk three blocks. For more information, call the museum at 301-864-6029; TTY 301-864-4765. Or call the airport at 301-864-5844; TTY 301-277-9269.

Aviation Museum Offers Fun for all

The main gallery of the College Park Aviation Museum gives visitors the rare chance to see a 1911 Wright B Aeroplane, a 1918 Curtiss Jenny, a 1932-era Monocoupe, an Ercoupe, a J-C Cub and the National Air & Space Museum's Berliner Helicopter. The four display and exhibition areas all feature interactive components.

The museum's library contains hundreds of aviation-related books and manuscripts, as well as a large video library. While museum members and volunteers have full use of the library, research in the archives is limited and supervised.

During the 1998-99 program season, the museum is offering an abundance of special programming, including: Speaking of Flight, a series of nationally known speakers who will examine the past, present, and future of aviation; Mayday 101, a series of programs featuring men and women who truly have looked into the eye of the storm; History of College Park Aviation Series, with speakers who will illuminate the first of our aviation heritage; Plane Talk, a Saturday morning series devoted to mechanics and technology; the Peter Pan Club, a Thursday morning gathering of pre-schoolers with an emphasis on enjoying the museum and learning about flying; the Wing Walkers, a weekly walking group for those interested in good health and a little history on the side; Special workshops, Model Making, Kite Flying, Home Built Airplanes and Learning to Fly information sessions; Special Events, Air Career Night, Aero Pics — a poster competition, Santa Claus and an Aero Plane Tree, and a clay tile sculpture creation; Music in the Air, Airplane Flicks and Tiller Thrillers; Halloween at the Museum and Jazz in the Air.

The museum also has a gift shop that offers unique aviation gifts.

The College Park Aviation Museum is open daily from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. For more detailed information call 301-864-6029, TTY 301-864-4765.

MD Artist Featured At Montpelier Center

Collage and mixed media works by Maryland artist Jacqueline Lee will be featured in the Montpelier Cultural Arts Center's Main Gallery from September 11 through October 27, with a reception to honor the artist on Friday, September 11 from 7 - 9 p.m.

Using paper, fabric, beads, dried plants, leather and paints (among other things), Lee creates works which represent people of the African Diaspora. Urban living, cultural perceptions of the elderly, and a child's role in the family unit are all subjects which she explores visually. Inspired by trips to Africa and Brazil, Lee's collages depict beautiful people dressed in brightly-colored flowing garments, living in exotic international surroundings.

A life-long native of the Washington metropolitan area, she is presently a freelance illustrator/designer. Her work has appeared on numerous TV shows including A Different World, Cosby, and Diagnosis Murder. She was the recipient of a 1996 Maryland State Arts Council Individual Artist Award and has exhibited extensively for many years.

council mentioned that perhaps another incident prevented the police from arriving sooner.

Christacos also announced that he is interested in cancelling the lease for the 8,000 square foot theater because it is operating at a loss and is four to five months behind in rent. He said he would like to bring a Dollar Value Store in its place.

"I'm the one who is bearing all the cost," he said. "I'm carrying the burden."

"It must give you a good feeling," quipped Councilmember Thomas White.

"You keep the feeling, give me the money," said Christacos.

Councilmember White came to the defense of the theater.

"The theater's presence helps Roosevelt Center," he said.

Roosevelt Center originally belonged to the city of Greenbelt, said Councilmember Edward Putens. "The city made a mistake, and it wants it back," he said.

"You might buy me out, but you can't take me out," said Christacos, who said he had not sold the center because his father objected.

"I'm glad it's you [who owns the center], and no one else," said Councilmember Putens. "At least you have heart."

Councilmember Putens also stressed keeping Roosevelt Center viable.

"It's like the sun and universe right now," he said.

Davis agreed.

"It is the heart of the city," she said. "We are trying to keep it alive."

One way the Council is trying to keep the center alive, Davis said, is by discouraging loiterers who in some cases intimidate customers. This is being accomplished by closing the city park, the area where the trees are, at 11 p.m., while the stores remain open. Davis said the police come around and encourage people to leave.

"Why do we have to be sensitive to young punks?" said Christacos.

"We can't lock people up for standing somewhere," said Mayor Davis.

Putens said incidents did occur where police caught people stealing at the 7-11, and the manager did not want to take action. Davis said the Roosevelt Center Association was considering hiring a part-time security guard.

"You have an obligation to protect the merchants," Christacos said.

"Although the theater was called the Utopia, we are not there," said Councilmember White. "We haven't reached perfection."

(Editor's note: Roosevelt Center was originally owned by the Federal Government as was all of Greenbelt. Initially, the co-op operated all the stores in the center, some with sub-tenants. When the government sold off Greenbelt in 1953, the buildings at Roosevelt Center were purchased by private individuals. The city, which never owned the buildings, was deeded the mall, which it continues to own as a park. By the time of the sale, the co-op had built a new supermarket [1948] at its present location and purchased that property from the Federal Government in 1953.

When the theater opened until the time it first closed, the vertical sign above the marquee read "Greenbelt.")

Legion Auxiliary Named Best

During a meeting held in Cheverly on August 23, Greenbelt Unit No. 136, American Legion Auxiliary, received top honors in the Southern Maryland District, including the coveted award for "Best All-Around Activities." The awards were made on the basis of reports submitted by the 45 units in the District comprised of Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, Prince George's, Montgomery and St. Mary's counties. Individual awards garnered by the unit were second place for the Poppy program; first place in the division for units having a membership of over 150 in the categories of Americanism, Children & Youth, Community Service, and Veterans Affairs & Rehabilitation; and first place for programs covering cancer control, education, and Gold Star (honoring women who lost a family member during wartime military service) and for the work of unit chaplain Charlotte Dixon. District president Rosita Dietrich presented the Best All Around Activities honor to Greenbelt unit president Rose Unruh, who proudly accepted the certificates of merit on behalf of the membership.

Local Scouts Collect Cans for Food Drive

Governor Parris N. Glendening greeted Boy Scouts from the National Capital Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America (NCACBSA) and wished them good luck in their annual "Scouting for Food" canned food drive. During each year's drive, boy scouts deliver bags to thousands of households in the region to collect canned goods, which are donated to local food programs. After greeting the boy scouts, Governor Glendening and scouts posed for promotional photographs for the upcoming food drive. Pictured left to right in the back row: Sea Scout

Anasazi Exhibits "Somata" at Montpelier

Maria Anasazi will exhibit a group of works entitled Somata in the Library Gallery of Montpelier Cultural Arts Center from September 8 through October 27. A reception, which the public is invited to attend, is scheduled for Friday, September 11 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Somata is a biological word which refers to the physical entity of an organism. Anasazi describes her work as a process of folding, filing and threading memories and personal experiences. She collects old books from yard sales and thrift shops, then folds, adds to, and transforms them into new objects. Her interest lies in blending her own history with the history of the book to create objects which function as containers for memories.

Presently residing in Frederick, Anasazi holds a certificate in Arts Therapy from The John F. Kennedy University, School of Psychology in Orinda, California, an M.A. in Interdisciplinary Art from San Francisco State University, and a B.F.A. in Graphic Design from California College of Arts and Crafts. In addition to exhibiting her work regularly on both the east and west coasts, she is on the faculty of the Rockville Arts Place in Rockville and the Delaplaine Visual Arts Center in Frederick.

using the military to prevent drugs from coming into the country. He questioned what had happened to a million dollars given to Baltimore for needles.

Education

Jean Snyder of Greenbelt raised the issue of education by asking Ahmed if he, if elected, would sponsor legislation to establish what he advocated in his campaign material—no new taxes for education and creating charter schools. Ahmed said that was his principal campaign issue. He contended that money was already there for education (the amount is not great compared to the cost of stadiums, he said) and that 29 states already have charter schools and more are considering establishing them.

Holmes opposed charter schools but said there was a need to fix and fund the public education system. Teacher certification must be emphasized, he said. He proposed allocating one cent of the sales tax to education. Braswell opposed more taxes, noting that Maryland already ranked tenth in amount of money spent on education. He felt that expenditures needed to be brought under control and the bottom line was that there was a parental responsibility to better education.

Nolan advocated improving discipline, taking control of schools, and providing books, computers and teachers who want to teach. He also advocated looking at the recent school audit, funding computers for private schools and a return to neighborhood schools. Hopp opposed computers in primary schools, saying the students needed to be taught to think at that level. He also noted that the problem was a money problem that could be corrected if there was held a Bretton Woods type of monetary conference as is advocated by LaRouche.

Conroy also wanted greater parental responsibility, noting that both mothers and fathers needed to be involved. But Hubbard noted that the problem kids are coming from problem areas having single parents and in which there is poverty.

Pitkin said that the most critical years for learning were the early years, that money was needed and that she would fight for "our share."

B. Wendell Branch, Assistant Editor of the Prince George's Sentinel Newspapers, asked the incumbents why there is still a problem and where were they when the children did not have school books. The three incumbents placed the blame and responsibility on the Board of Education. Pitkin reported that the delegates sought and obtained funding not just for school construction but for other needs. "Our job was to bring home the bacon, and we did," she said.

Holmes called the situation one that did not develop overnight and would need someone who is to work with the system and recognize problems before they occur. Hopp felt that the money problem needed to be fixed first. Nolan placed the responsibility upon the principals and money managers and said that the principals should go out and raise funds if necessary in order to have books. Braswell felt that the legislators had a responsibility to check out how the money they obtained was spent. Ahmed said that the delegates can't manage the school but that there was a need to create competition by establishing charter schools.

Pitkin commented that the school audit was a requirement of the legislation providing funding. Because of TRIM, it is difficult for the delegates to obtain the support of legislators in other jurisdictions, she said, but she would look at other sources of income other than the property tax. Holmes readvoked the allocation of one cent of the sales tax.

Single Districts.

CFG posed three questions to all the candidates. The first was if they would support delegates being elected from single member districts. Some believe that this is a way of ensuring that there is a delegate who is a Greenbelt resident. At present, all three delegates from the 23rd district are from the Bowie area.

Ahmed, Conroy and Hopp support such a district for Greenbelt. Hubbard and Holmes were opposed. The other three were non-committal.

Pitkin felt that Greenbelt should see the numbers first, noting that there are a lot of factors that go into the redistricting following the census. Braswell felt that it was more important to elect accountable legislators and Nolan said he was open-minded on the issue.

ICC Funding

The second question was whether the candidates were in favor of forbidding further expenditures for the Inter-County Connecter.

The three incumbents, Ahmed and Holmes, supported such efforts. Hopp supports the ICC and other infrastructure improvements. Nolan was concerned with the Beltway's becoming a parking lot and Braswell felt the matter required more study.

Petitioning Zoning Laws

The third CFG question asked if the candidates would support legislation to enable the reinstatement of Article 7 of the Prince George's County Charter, ruled invalid by the courts, which permitted changes in the zoning law to be petitioned to referendum.

The three incumbents noted that they had supported such legislation in the past, which had passed in the House of Delegates but was defeated in the Senate. Only Hopp opposed the effort, stating that direct democracy was subject to the manipulation of public opinion.

Minimum Wage

Kurt Walter of Westchester Park asked the candidates if they supported an increase in the minimum wage. All three incumbents were co-sponsors of such legislation and support it. The other candidates, too, support increasing the minimum wage, except for Hopp, who said there was a need to fix the money problems around the world and that LaRouche has the ideas to do so and restore economic justice.

Integrity

Branch also asked the candidates to comment on integrity in office. All assured him that they had it, but Hopp noted the lack of interest, judging by the size of the audience, of voters in taking a good look at the candidates.

Julia Jones of the Family Crisis Center thanked the incumbents for their funding support and Nolan for his support as a leader in the Prince George's United Way. She asked the candidates to comment on the lack of ability of the county sheriff's office to serve warrants on domestic violators. Ahmed called the relationship between the county executive and the sheriff disturbing, but felt it was not a state problem.

Braswell said he would work to ensure that money was available for serving warrants. Hopp said he had the resources of an office of 20 people to back him up on a subject which he does not know and that drugs in the county is a serious matter.

Nolan said there was a need to have a way to handle warrants. Holmes said that greater community policing was needed to reduce domestic violence. Pitkin called domestic violence one of her premier issues. She detailed legislative efforts she has initiated to deal with the problem.

Conroy noted the success of the efforts of the women's caucus of the legislature, of which she is a participant, in bringing more funds into Maryland. Hubbard noted that he was one of three incorporators of the Family Crisis Center and there was still a 79 percent success rate in serving domestic violence warrants, although it had once been at 91 percent.

Mentor a Family

The County Dept. of Social Services' Office of Volunteer Services and Resource Development is seeking families to serve as mentors to families who are in need of support and guidance. An information and orientation session will be held on Sept. 17, at 7 p.m. in the multi-purpose room of the Dept. of Social Services, 6505 Belcrest Rd., Hyattsville. For questions contact Natalie Hovis at 301-209-5018.

Isn't it nice to get a prize just for being yourself?

When we heard J.D. Power and Associates ranked us number one in sales satisfaction, we were a little surprised. After all, there are a lot of other cars out there. But then we found out that sales satisfaction includes things like having sales consultants who are sincere and easy to work with, who don't mind doing things like taking the time to go through the owner's manual with you. And once we knew that, it all made sense. Because, along with making a great car, those are the very things that are important to us. And if they want to give us an award for it, okay, great, whatever.

Greenbelt's Business

Post Office Site Chosen by Council

by Diane Oberg

The meeting did not start exactly as planned. There was no large-scale site plan and the developer's representative was not sure whether a landscape plan even existed. Despite these obstacles, the main objective of the August 26 special city council meeting was accomplished — the Greenbelt City Council approved, subject to agreement on final wording, the changes needed to permit construction of a new post office in Greenbelt East. The plans for the site will now be submitted for review to the National Capital Planning Commission.

The new post office will be located at the corner of Hanover Parkway and Ora Glen Drive behind the existing Banc One building. Until council's action, use of the site had been restricted by property covenants to a corporate suite hotel or commercial office building. The Postal Service has agreed to leave a post office in Roosevelt Center.

Under the revised covenants, the city will have the right to review and approve the landscape plan and any changes to the site plan. In addition, the only significant changes permitted to the site plan will be those required by local land use authorities. Originally, Andre Gingles, the attorney representing the property owner, the Peterson Companies, sought to reduce this to simple review and comment. He assured the council that federal procedures would ensure that the city's concerns were considered and stated that no other entity had legal standing to approve federal plans.

The councilmembers were not persuaded. Councilmember Rodney Roberts pointed out that the parties to the covenants were the city and the Peterson Companies, not the Postal Service. Councilmember Edward Putens added that the Postal Service, as a quasi-federal entity, has the power to enter into the agreements necessary to develop its facilities. Councilmember Thomas White noted that the city is simply seeking to ensure adherence to the plans upon which it agreed to review the covenants to permit construction of the post office. At this Gingles, recalling that he had been described as being able to count votes, accepted the city's wording.

CITY OF GREENBELT REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS

The City of Greenbelt is accepting proposals for the ROOSEVELT CENTER MALL RENOVATION, contract 1998-6. This project involves the demolition of the existing paved mall, removal of all trees, installation of new trees and landscape materials, construction of new pavement, relocation of light fixtures, extension of an irrigation system, and the installation of new site furnishings.

A pre-submittal meeting will be held Thursday, September 10 at 10 a.m. in the Greenbelt Community Center, 15 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, MD.

Proposals will be accepted until Monday, September 21, 1998 at 4:30 p.m.

Contract documents may be obtained in the offices of the Department of Planning and Community Development, 15 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, MD, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays. Proposals should be returned to the same address.

Questions should be directed to C. Craze at 301-345-5417.

The City of Greenbelt is an equal opportunity employer.

ANNEXATION

critical during a time of emergency, he noted, such as a response to a crime or in a snow emergency.

Superintendent of Operations Ken Hall expressed concern that his public works crews could not maintain radio contact with other city units from that remote location. Chief of Police James Craze is of the opinion that response times to calls and routine patrols could be adversely affected.

Next Steps

The Greenbelt City Council has scheduled action on the resolution for annexation at its next meeting on September 14. It could then either vote to approve the annexation or vote against it. If the resolution is defeated, the annexation issue is dead—unless someone changes their mind. If the council should adopt the resolution, it would not become effective until a waiting period of 45 days has passed, during which time the annexation could be petitioned to referendum by either 20% of the registered voters of Parkside or of the city. If that occurred, the city would have to place the question on the ballot for either a special election or at the next city election.

City Notes

The Public Works Department Parks crew completed construction of the bus shelter on Cherrywood Lane, renovated the dugouts at the Little League Field, and assisted with the Labor Day booths.

The Special Operations crew worked on the Labor Day booths, cleaned around the city, and assisted the city of College Park.

The Horticultural crew installed an underground irrigation line and landscaped around the police station, watered, weeded, and fertilized around the city.

The Building Maintenance crew repaired the air conditioner in the Springhill Lake gym, repaired fixtures and replaced burned out lamps, and unclogged plumbing at Schrom Hills Park.

The Streets crew cleaned many places around town, and filled potholes.

Vehicle Maintenance serviced nine vehicles and continued installation of mobile display terminals.

The Cleaning crew cleaned and maintained all city buildings and facilities, and refinished the floor at the Community Center at Schrom Hills Park, worked with the contractor to clean the carpets at the police station and the Aquatic Center.

The Public Works Department welcomed Anthony Holmes to the Horticulture crew. Holmes was formerly employed by GHI.

Brunches a Success at New Deal Cafe

by Marsha Barrett

The New Deal Cafe will have a booth at the Labor Day Festival selling Frappacino milkshakes, muffins and other items. The Cafe will also sponsor a pie-eating contest featuring celebrity participants like Greenbelt's Mayor Judith Davis and others. During the Festival, the Cafe will be open on Sunday only.

All this activity follows a year where the Cafe Board, volunteers, and members tried various ideas to revitalize the New Deal Cafe. In addition to the Festival activities, the New Deal board initiated Sunday brunches earlier this summer.

Board President Pat Brent says the Sunday brunch is a success. "People like to come and leisurely read the newspaper or talk with friends. This is not something you can readily do in an average restaurant," noted Brent.

rant," noted Brent.

Brent, who has a background in restaurant management, spearheaded the brunch idea and menu. She says, "The menu is popular." Currently, the menu carries various combinations of eggs and omelets, potatoes, bacon, sausage, pancakes, and toast. Besides the standard menu, there are frequent specials like waffles, biscuits, scones, apple sausage, blueberry crisp, or cinnamon rolls.

Besides the festival activities and the ongoing brunch, Brent said, "We need to find a way to get our presence known in the community." Peggy Barrot, cafe manager, added, "We are looking into co-sponsoring an event with other Roosevelt Center merchants and various Greenbelt civic groups."

While the brunch has been a success, a return to the Friday night schedule this fall is not possible because most of the Cafe's volunteers are involved in the Saturday and Sunday schedules. "We don't want to stretch our volunteer resources," said Barrot. Volunteers for the kitchen and administrative tasks are needed as well as food managers to keep the Cafe operational.

For more information, or to volunteer at the Labor Day booth or cafe, call Peggy Barrot at 301-345-3639.

Deborah Tinsley Becomes New Library Supervisor

by Dennis Jelalian
Some people are so full of energy and enthusiasm that they seem to bubble and sparkle like a freshly opened bottle of champagne. That's a good description of Deb (Deborah) Tinsley, the new circulation supervisor at the library. She takes the place of the recently retired Johnnie Lombardi, who first hired Tinsley to work as a page at the Greenbelt branch on September 3, 1985. "I was making *!?!& cents an hour," Tinsley says.

Tinsley worked at Greenbelt for three years. She spent a year working at the Beltsville branch half time, and went on to spend six years working at the Hyattsville branch full time.

Hyattsville has special memories for Tinsley. There was a copier technician that she found attractive, but she was puzzled when he was friendly sometimes, and other times he hardly noticed her. Two months later she figured it out when she saw them both together. They were twins. She married Bobby, the friendly one. They've been married for two years.

Coming Back to Greenbelt
In May 1996, Tinsley was promoted to circulation supervisor at Spauldings branch in

Food Program Keeps Child Care Meals

The Department of Food and Nutrition Services for Prince George's County Public Schools announce the continued sponsorship of the Child and Adult Care Food Program for family day care homes located in Prince George's County.

Meals will be provided to children at licensed family day care providers' homes. The same meals will be available at no separate charge to all enrolled children regardless of race, color, sex, age, disability, or national origin. There is no discrimination in admissions policy, meal service, or the use of facilities.

For additional information, call George L. Bibbins, Director, Department of Food and Nutrition Services at 301-952-6580, or write to Prince George's County Public Schools, 13300 Old Marlboro Pike, Upper Marlboro, MD 20772.

Student Scholarships Increase in County

Eleanor Roosevelt High School was the county leader among Prince George's County public schools in the amount of scholarship monies awarded for the 1997-98 school year. Eleanor Roosevelt High School students received $14,481,168 in scholarships and the county total was $57,336,535. This is an increase of more than $6 million over last year's totals. This is the third year in a row that Prince George's County public school students have received scholarships totaling over $50 million.

A continuing trend of increasing scholarships awarded to Prince George's County public school students can be attributed to a number of factors, including a unified effort on the part of the school system's guidance counselors to make students aware of the many scholarship opportunities available to them.

District Heights. She started as a circulation manager at Greenbelt on July 6. She says everyone has made her feel welcome. Although she started in Greenbelt, the library has been thoroughly renovated and reconfigured since she last worked here; so it feels like a different library. She hasn't learned where everything is yet. "It's the little things that get me. Like, where are the paper clips? I feel like I'm cooking dinner in somebody else's kitchen."

But Tinsley's not worried. She's worked hard and feels competent and confident in her profession. The Prince George's County Memorial Library System serves a diverse culture. Tinsley is proud to be a part of that. She loves meeting people, talking to them, and helping them. She wants the public to come to the library and enjoy doing it. She wants to make it easy for people who may be intimidated by the library. "Greenbelt is great. I love my job!" she says. She likes the old values, the camaraderie of Greenbelt. She likes looking out for her neighbors.

Tinsley especially enjoys giving children their first library card, and giving them the responsibility to check books out of the library. She loves it when a young person tells her, "I've read 12 books this summer." Go, yeah!

A Lakewood Baby
Tinsley describes herself as a Lakewood baby. She's never lived outside of Greenbelt. She and her husband bought a house nine doors away from her mother's house.

Tinsley comes from a large close family. She has two brothers, a sister and lots of nephews and nieces.

Tinsley's immediate family consists of her husband Bobby, her "son," Tucker, a six and a half year old miniature pinscher; and her "daughter," Tessa, a four-year-old Chihuahua.

When she's not working at the library, Tinsley is a big Cowboys fan. She's always doing something around the house. They've just installed new insulated windows. Her next big project is a deck.
